

Weekly Market Guide

Issue No. 220204, 04 February 2022

INTRODUCTION: HIGH FERTILISER PRICES, RISING FARMER CONCERN!

There has been a significant increase in fertiliser prices this season, more specifically nitrogenous fertilisers. This has increased the cost of production for agricultural enterprises. The country is currently experiencing persistent rains, which increases leaching of nutrients and in turn increased fertiliser requirements. Fertilisers contribute a significant percentage towards the cost of production. Fertilisers contribute about 50% and 36% of cost of production for large scale and small-scale farms respectively. This implies that any increase in fertiliser prices significantly affect the farmers' income. Farmers are encouraged to apply fertilisers based on soil testing recommendations as opposed to blind application and use organic matter to reduce inorganic fertiliser requirements.
